Three vie for vacant Congressional seat

BY DENA BISNETTE
The polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. Tuesday for the special election designed to fill the Fifth District congressional seat left vacant by Rep. Larkin Smith's death.

The field includes two Democrats, Gene Taylor and Mike Moore, and one Republican, Tom Anderson.

Moore currently serves as state attorney general and is a former district attorney for Jackson County. Taylor, a Bay St. Louis resident, is a state senator whose political career began with his election as a Bay St. Louis city councilman.

Anderson, the Republican candidate, is a former chief of staff to Senator Trent Lott, who at that time was a member of the House of Representatives.

The special election date was set by Gov. Ray Mabus following Smith's death in an Aug. 13 airplane crash. Unless the governor specifies otherwise, special elections are usually held on the first Tuesday in November.

Voters in the Celmont Harbor precinct should remember that their voting location has been changed from the old Clermont Harbor School to Clermont Harbor United Methodist Church. Other precinct locations remain the same.

Local scientist opposed to NASA's ASRM tests

BY D.C. HARVILL

A scientific researcher who addressed the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Thursday voiced opposition to the testing of NASA's Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) at Stennis Space Center.

"I see nothing good coming out of this," Dr. Robert Esher, head of environmental research at Mississippi State University Research Center at Stennis Space Center, said during a presentation to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors about the tests.

He spoke at the invitation of District Three Supervisor Lisa Coward and talked to the board about health and environmental damages the tests could cause if conducted at Stennis.

NASA plans to begin testing ASRMs at Stennis in the early 1990's in a program that is expected to last 30 years.

Politicians and residents in areas of Mississippi and Louisiana surrounding the space center have expressed concern that the tests will have devastating effects in spite of NASA's claims to the contrary.

Esher showed a video of solid rocket tests, similar to the tests planned for Stennis, that were conducted in Utah.

In the video, the 13-foot-diameter and 135-foot-long rocket is dwarfed by a black cloud created by its exhaust.

"It almost looks like a nuclear explosion," Beat One Supervisor Robert Peterson said of the cloud.

"This test is totally unlike what they (NASA) are doing (at Stennis) now. They have never tested anything like this in South Mississippi," Esher said.

The two components of the rocket's exhaust cloud that most concern Esher and other opponents of the tests are hydrogen chloride and aluminum oxide.

Each test firing will dump into the atmosphere approximately 230,000 pounds of hydrogen chloride gas and 360,000 pounds of aluminum oxide.

NASA has maintained that the tests will be conducted during weather conditions that will allow the exhaust plume to disperse over such a large area it will cause no damage.

Esher, who has done a study on the disposal of waste solid rocket propellant for NASA, pointed out to the supervisors that the tests in the video were conducted at an elevation above 4,000 feet, where the cloud tends to rise higher in the cooler, less dense air.

He also pointed out that the area in Utah is a "high plains desert, with virtually no vegetation" and where "the humidity is usually less than 10 percent."

In the low humidity, the hydrogen chloride gas is less likely to combine with moisture in the atmosphere to form hydrochloric acid.

According to Esher, in Mississippi's high humidity the amount of hydrogen chloride

Waveland Red Cross volunteers travel to aid hurricane victims

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Joseph and Jessica Gambino of Waveland joined Red Cross volunteers from across the nation in Columbia, S. C. Thursday to assist victims of Hurricane Hugo.

The Gambinos drove to Sumpter, S. C., where damage estimates (65 percent complete) indicated 900 completely destroyed homes and 1,400 badly damaged ones.

"No utilities or water are available in the area," said Joseph Gambino. "The residents are surviving on bologna and cheese sandwiches—including the Red Cross volunteers. We were told to have some good meals before we left home."

The Gambinos will assist Red

Cross personnel in problem solving and casework areas. They have been tentatively assigned to the area for three weeks.

Other volunteers from the Mississippi Gulf Coast Red Cross Chapter arrived in Charleston, S. C. last Friday with a "feeding van" and reported serving 1,100 meals the first day and more than 2,000 on Saturday.

The group also delivered cases of baby food, diapers and water.

Donations for the thousands of homeless victims are being accepted at the local Red Cross office, 335 Coleman Avenue, Waveland, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. until noon.

For more information, call Jeanne Garcia, director, at 467-7609.

New 911 system to be dedicated

BY DENA BISNETTE

A dedication ceremony for the county's new Enhanced 911 emergency system will be conducted at 11:30 a.m. Monday in the courtroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Speakers are scheduled to include Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, who served as head of a steering commission for the two-year Enhanced 911 project.

Peterson said he also expects the ceremony to include comment from Hancock County Tax Collector and Assessor Edward Murtagh, who supervised the data collection and mapping phases of the project; and other county officials.

The dignitaries are also expected to include representatives from South Central Bell, which provided installation of the electronic equipment at the three Enhanced 911 dispatching points.

The recently installed system officially goes into use today. Under the new system, dispatchers at the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Waveland Police Department and Bay St. Louis Police Department will be provided with an automatic computer read-out

Diamondhead sewer commission named, group threatens law suit

BY D.C. HARVILL

Action by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Thursday moved a group of Diamondhead residents one step closer to gaining a water and sewer district, while another group plans to file a class action suit against the developers of the community.

No one voiced opposition to creation of the district at a hearing on the matter Thursday, so the board appointed a commission to oversee creation and operation of the district.

The initial commissioners are appointed from one to five-year terms so subsequent appointees will serve staggered five-year terms.

Thursday's district commission appointees are Daniel W. Smith, one year; William Dalton, two years; Richard Nolan, three years; Jim Brumfield, four years; and Roland Tedesco, five years.

Opponents of the district have 15 days to appeal the board's action.

The Diamondhead Water-Sewer Association, the group that has fought for creation of the district, claims the community's existing system is inadequate.

In the event plans to purchase the existing utility system from its owner, Peter J. Casano, are unsuccessful, association members have said they will try to acquire it through eminent domain proceedings.

Purcell purchased Diamondhead Utilities, Inc., operators of the current system, from Casano in May.

At Thursday's hearing the board learned that another group of Diamondhead residents intends to file a class-action suit against Diamondhead developer Purcell Co., Inc.

W.M. Mannion said he will file the suit in federal court by Wednesday.

The group wants Purcell to turn over all its remaining property in the subdivision to a trust so it may be sold as needed to improve the utility system.

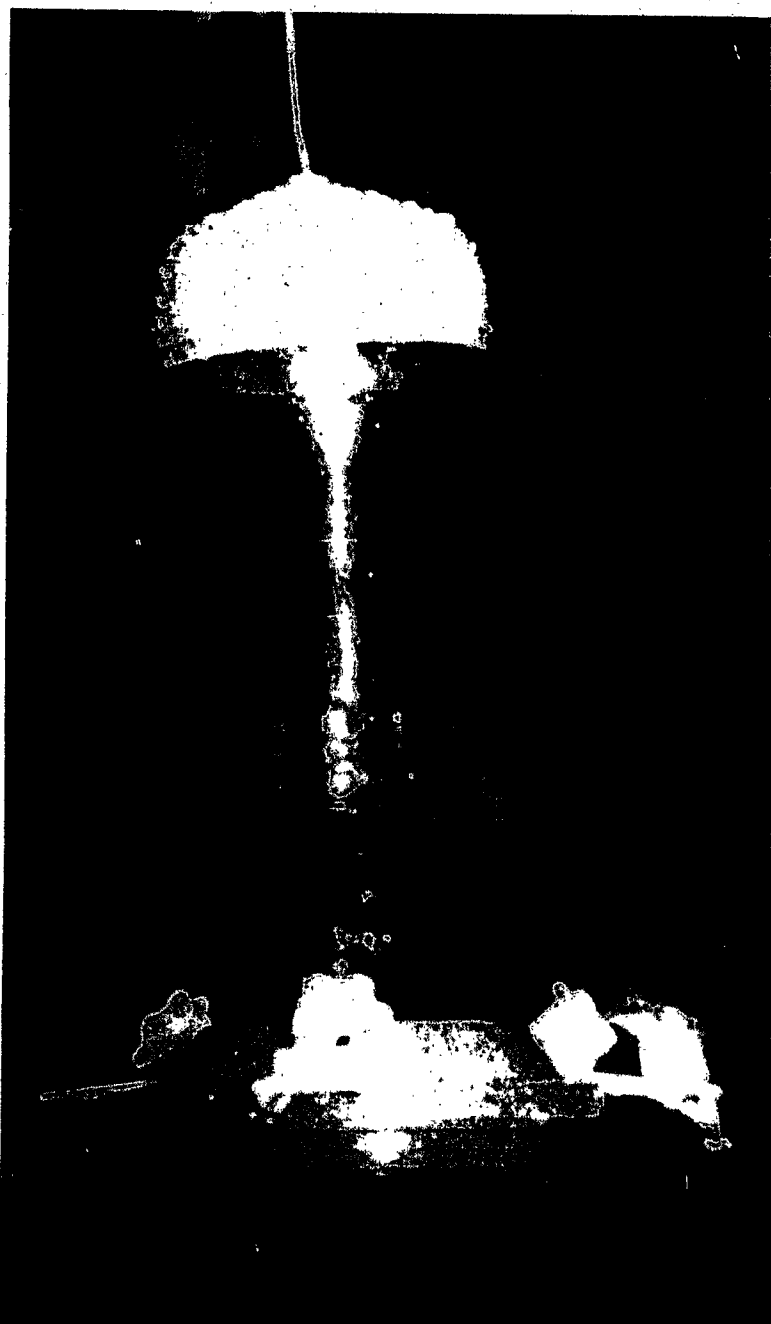

A conservative estimate of the cost of those improvements is $6 million, Mannion said.

Purcell guaranteed the purchasers of Diamondhead property a "adequate and sanitary" system, and by not doing so have committed a breach of contract, Mannion said.

The existing system has been inadequate since 1985, he said.

Casano said he does not know how Purcell could be made responsible for future improvements to the system.

If the suit is successful, a trustee will be appointed by the court to "guarantee that money will be available to fund improvements," Mannion said.

'Deathtrap' starts Thursday

The Waveland Players will present Ira Levin's "Deathtrap" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue. Levin, who is noted for his twisted plots and less-than-saintly characters, also wrote "Rosemary's Baby."

"Deathtrap" is a two-act, one-set, five-character piece like the many hits that Sidney Bruhl created before suffering a severe case of writer's block.

When the play opens, Bruhl has just received a sure-fire blockbuster manuscript from Clifford Anderson, a student in one of Bruhl's seminars. Bruhl speculated to his wife, Myra, that if he kills Anderson and steals the manuscript, his reputation, finances and social standing will enjoy a turnaround.

The suspense increases when Anderson arrives to discuss his work and is escorted into Bruhl's study, which is decorated with various and sundry weapons and other accouterments of death.

Before the curtain falls, death visits the Bruhl home more than once. "Deathtrap" opened in New York in 1978, with John Wood as Sidney, Victor Garber as Clifford and Marian Seldes as Myra. The movie version starred Michael Caine as Sidney, Christopher Reeves as Clifford and Dyan Cannon as Myra.

For the Waveland Players' production, directed by Dottie Overal and produced by Edith Back, Clem Acker will portray Bruhl and Martin Booda will portray Anderson.

The role of Myra will be played by Nan Ehrbright. Diane Thomas will play the part of Helga Ten Dorp, a Dutch psychologist who has rented a nearby cottage, and James G. Tucker III will portray Bruhl's attorney, Porter Milgrim.

Acker and Booda, both oceanographers with NAVO-CEANO at John C. Stennis Space Center, are veteran thespians.

Acker has had leading roles on community theatre stages in Diamondhead, Waveland and Bay St. Louis. His most recent roles were in "This Must Be the Place" for BSLLT and "6 Rms Riv Vu" for Waveland Players.

Booda's credits include roles in productions of Picayune On Stage, Sidell Little Theatre, Gulfport Little Theatre, Diamondhead Little Theatre, Center Stage, BSLLT and Waveland Players -- most recently in

"Bull in a China Shop" and "Crimes of the Heart," both for Waveland Players.

Ehrbright, Hancock County Bureau Chief for the Sun Herald, has acted and directed for Waveland Players, Bay St. Louis Little Theatre and Diamondhead Little Theatre as well as the Columbia Little Theatre in Hammond, La. and Cheyenne Little Theatre in Wyoming. Her last role was in "California Suite" for BSLLT.

For Thomas, a 17-year-old senior at Bay High School, "Deathtrap" will mark her first role in a Coast community theatre production, but she is no novice to the stage. Her stage credits include a community theatre production of "Scrooge, the Musical," in Auburn, Ala., four years ago and a high school production of "The Women" at Vancleave.

Tucker is making his stage debut in "Deathtrap," unless one counts his courtroom performances. The Pass Christian resident practices law in Bay St. Louis and is one of Hancock County's public defenders.

Overal also is a veteran of the Waveland Players' stage. Her most recent directorship was "Bus Stop."

Tickets are $4 at the door. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

and Martin Booda

Reflections On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, STD

Living the golden rule

The length, width, height and depth of the golden rule are totally amazing. Jesus outdid himself when he gave us the simple advice: "Treat others the way you would have them treat you. This sums up the law and the prophets" (Mt. 7:12) (Tobit 4:15).

What do you want others to think of you? What kind of opinions do you want them to have about you?

Whenever they think of you, what kind of effect do you want to have on their minds? Do you want them to think of you as simple, as complex, as learned, as clever, as profound, as practical or as intellectual?

You should think of others in exactly the same way, according to the best Adviser of all time. What you want for yourself is precisely what you should want for them as well.

What kind of reputation do you want to have among others? How do you want them to view your morality, your character, your determination to respect God and all people?

Without discriminating from one person to another, that is the same reputation you must wish for others, and you must do your best to leave room for such a fine reputation in your mind.

How do you want others to feel about you? Do you want them to feel that you are comfortable to be around, that you are a warm and engaging person, that you are good medicine for whatever ails anyone, that you are good news in the face of life's depressions?

Then feel the same way about others, inasmuch as that is possible. You will find that this is an infectious process. The way you feel about yourself is the way you begin to feel about others, and, pretty soon, the benign contagion spreads to others, so that they actually start thinking about themselves and you in that way.

What do you want others to say about you? You hardly want them to be eager to hear something negative or juicy about you in rabid anticipation of acquiring ammunition to gossip about you.

Surely, you want them to wish for something good to say about you, and to stay on the lookout for positive things to report about you.

That is the same attitude you should have toward gossip about anyone, anywhere, anytime. Your Christian mettle is very weak if you cannot wait, if you are an ugly bundle of nervous expectation until the next piece of gossip surfaces.

In the same way that you like others to give you the time of day, to greet you in a heartfelt manner which recognizes your dignity and worth as a human being, so should you greet them. You also like it when someone takes time to listen to you, to be with you, to do things together with you. Can you afford to do any less with regard to all the people who come into your life?

Even if you deny it or protest against it, you do enjoy each compliment which people pay you about your clothes, your looks, your appearance, your general bearing, your job performance, your sense of humor, your lively spirit, your joie de vivre, and whatever talents you share with others at anytime.

Just as you enjoy such compliments, make sure that you never omit to compliment others on their strengths and the points of interest which they showcase in dealing with people.

What do you need more than a word of encouragement, a vote of confidence, an affirming angel and a helping hand when you are in the doldrums, discouraged or depressed by the trials of your life?

Thought for thought, word for word, step for step, match that in the way you treat others. Even as Jesus did constantly, reach out to others the same way you want them to reach out to you.

Small business seminars on shoplifting, ad valorem taxes slated at Gulfport Chamber

The Mississippi Legislature passed into law new shoplifting measures that are designed to protect retailers against shoplifting losses. Retailers and their employees need to know and understand this law which became effective July 1988.

The MS Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce and the USM Small Business Development Center are co-sponsoring this seminar designed to inform our small business community about this law, as well as shoplifting prevention techniques. Dave Eller with Jitney-Jungle Security Offices in Jackson will be the presenter.

Spence Dye with the Retail Association of Mississippi will also be present at the seminar. He will address the unfairness of the ad valorem tax on retail inventory and how the tax impacts the retailers of our state.

The seminar will be held October 3 from 6:30 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. at the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce building. There is no cost for the seminar; however, we do request that you call and reserve a space.

A friend recently brought me some very tasty chili she had made with ground turkey, and told me that she often varies her recipes by substituting ground turkey for ground beef or pork. For example, her ever so quickly prepared variation of:

GOULASH

(There are many, many variations of this dish, as you know.)

1 1/2 lbs. ground turkey
1 large onion, chopped
1 bell (green) pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 large can tomatoes (chop the tomatoes)
1 can French cut green beans, drained, or leftover beans
1 can red (kidney) beans or leftover beans
1 cup sharp Cheddar, grated
Saute onions, pepper, garlic and meat in the barest amount of oil, then add all the other ingredients and simmer slowly for 10 minutes or until it's all blended together and hot. Add pepper and salt to your taste, and serve with hot

1/2 bell (green) pepper, chopped
1 1/2 cups water
Brown the meat, along with the seasonings. Place the raw rice in a casserole dish, add the meat, then pour the tomato sauce, onion soup mix and water over all, and bake for 1 1/2 hours in a 350 degree oven.

If steak's your choice, check the meat department at NATIONAL, for the store's "light" calf steak sale - 25 percent less fat and fewer calories than usual beef - a round or sirloin or cutlets and so on, according to your choice. You might try:

MEXICAN-STYLE STEAK

1 lb. round steak, half-inch thick
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. chili powder
1/2 cup flour, plus a scant tablespoon
1 Tbsp. olive or vegetable oil
1 onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, mashed
1 cup coarsely chopped fresh tomatoes
1 Tbsp. white wine, stock or water
Mix salt, chili powder and half a cup of the flour into a smooth blend and beat into steak with the butt end of a knife.

In a large skillet, heat the oil and saute the onion and garlic for three minutes. Add the steak and quickly brown both sides over high heat. Add tomatoes and water to cover. Cover skillet and simmer 30 minutes, or until meat is tender.

Remove meat to a hot platter. Make gravy by blending a scant tablespoon of flour with a tablespoon of white wine, stock or water. Stir to mix well, add to skillet, blend and bring to a boil. Pour into a gravy boat, and serve immediately with meat. (Two servings) - from The Full Flavor Cookbook, Liberty Publishing Co.

It's potatoes and more potatoes, that good staple of the menu, with JITNEY JUNGLE, with special savings on bags of Russet potatoes - and on yellow onions, as well. So why not combine these two money savers, and cook up a skillet full of sliced potatoes and sliced onions for a quicker than quick supper dish?

I like to keep cold, boiled potatoes on hand in the refrigerator for all sorts of quick dishes, even for drop-in company. A bit like a bit of "money in the bank."

If you choose those quarter pork loins, loin or rib half, from DELCHAMPS, you'll have various ways to use 'em up and enjoy them. Try:

NEOPOLITAN PORK CHOPS

4 pork chops, rib or loin
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 cup vegetable oil
2 bell (green) peppers, chopped
1 tsp salt
1/2 tsp freshly ground black pepper, preferable
Pinch of dried oregano
2 fresh, ripe tomatoes, chopped, or more 1/2 cup crushed Italian tomatoes
3 Tbsp. wine vinegar
1/2 lb. mushrooms, sliced
Brown garlic in oil in skillet, add chops and brown on both sides. Add green peppers, salt, pepper, oregano, tomatoes, vinegar and mushrooms. Cook, covered, over low heat for 45 minutes, adding a little water if needed. (Four servings.) - from Mama D's Old-Fashioned Italian Cooking, Prentice-Hall Co.)

Hawks stop Rocks 20-6 for homecoming victory

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock North Central Hawks defeated their local rival, the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws, on a wet field Friday, maintaining an undefeated season record and racking up a second district victory.

The 20-6 final score, taken by itself, made the game look different than the contest pre-game publicity touted as one of the most even matches this year.

The first quarter was a fast-paced defensive battle highlighted by Casey Davis' interception of a St. Stanislaus pass,

The extra point kick fell short, leaving a 6-6 tie with 9:31 left in the half.

After two more turnovers, the Hawks surged ahead on 24-yard touchdown run by Goff, raising the score to 12-6 with less than two minutes to go. A try for two failed.

The Hawks tried again to score as the clock ran out first half, as a pass was dropped in the endzone.

In second half action, the Rocks' Vince Altese punted on a fourth down and Terrence Goff snatched the ball out of the air to St. Martin next week, said the weather played some part in the outcome.

"The weather was a little bit of a factor, but we played great pass defense. It was outstanding, the best I've seen," said Favre, who called his opponent, "a good football team."

St. Stanislaus Head Coach Ken Lyons praised his players for a good effort and for "showing a lot of character. These boys never did give up on themselves."

"The team that makes the fewest mistakes wins," he added in summing up the game. Lyons takes his team to Salmen High School in Slidell, La.

Hancock North Central, 5-0, is ranked ninth in the state and St. Stanislaus is now 4-1 for the season.

which set up a Hawk drive leading to a second and goal on the Rock-A-Chaw seven yardline.

Halfback Terrence Goff dashed in for the night's first touchdown, posting a 6-0 lead for the homecoming Hawks with 5:50 left in the first quarter.

A pass for a two-point conversion was incomplete and the ball went back to the Rocks, who lost it to Hawk Reagan Ladner on an interception. However, the Hawks ended up punting the ball back to the Rocks on a fourth down.

The Rocks tried their ground game on the next series, driving it down to the Hancock four, using keepers by quarterback Cedric Smith interspersed with carries by Gary Ponthieux. On the first and goal, the Rocks handed off to Ken Booker, who dove in to tie the score.

for a 65-yard punt return and his third touchdown of the night, raising the score to 18-6 with 2:18 left in the third quarter.

The try for a conversion worked this time, with Casey Davis passing to Jeff Favre for two.

The Rocks continued fighting until the end of the game, coming close on a couple of drives during the fourth quarter. Two passes were dropped in the end zone.

The last Stanislaus drive looked hopeful, but the Rocks lost the ball inside the Hancock 10 when Ladner broke up one of Smith's passes.

The final score stood at 20-6. Both coaches said they were pleased with the game. Hancock North Central Head Coach Irvin Favre, who takes his team

East Central stings Bay High, spoil 1989 homecoming game

BY D.C. HARVILL

Though Friday's day-long rains had ended earlier in the afternoon, there was a sparse turnout to witness the Bay High Tiger's disappointing 21-0 homecoming defeat at the hands of the East Central Hornets.

In the first quarter of a game notable for its 10 fumbles and single interception, the teams seemed evenly matched.

Despite several scoring threats, neither team's offense was able to penetrate the other's defense for the points. The board was scoreless at the end of the quarter.

In the opening plays of the second quarter, things seemed to be going the Tigers' way. Their defense held the Hornets to short yardage and Bay recovered an East Central fumble on their own 30-yard line.

After taking the ball to the 15-yard line, a field goal attempt by the Tiger's Kevin Edwards failed to make the uprights.

After the Hornets took over the ball at their own 15, Dusty Watts received a Nathan Upshaw pass, carrying the ball to the Tiger's 35-yard line.

Then in a fourth-down situation, with 3:30 left in the quarter, Upshaw handed off to Tommy Huff, who ran the ball 32 yards for the Hornet's first touchdown of the evening. The extra point kick by Brian Williams was good.

Moments later, the Hornets threatened to score, driving to the Tiger 19, but they were not able to reclaim the yardage after a low block penalty moved them back 15 yards.

Early in the third quarter, the Hornets' Lowery Smith took a Greg Wellborn pass and bowled past five Tiger tacklers, taking East Central's lead to 13-0. The extra point attempt was flubbed.

After an elusive run up the middle, Tiger Willie Moody fumbled at the Hornets' 46 and East Central recovered the ball.

Then the Hornets fumbled and the Tigers recovered on their own 43, but were held to short yardage.

On their next possession, a Hornet fumble was recovered by the Tigers.

Then, with moments left in the quarter, Huff cushioned the Hornet lead when he took a quarterback hand-off and, on a left flank, dashed in for a TD. The score was 19-0.

On an option, Upshaw kept the ball and crossed the goal for two points. The Hornets led 21-0.

There were four turnovers in the fourth quarter, two each, including an interception by Upshaw, but neither team was able to score.

The game ended with the Hornets improving their season record to 2-3. The Tigers are 0-4 for the year and will travel to Long Beach next week to take on the Bearcats.

Junior Rocks drop two games

The St. Stanislaus Junior High Rock-A-Chaws faced the Stone County Tomcats in two games last Thursday at Rock-A-Chaw stadium and dropped both.

In the eighth grade contest, the Rocks lost 26-0; and the ninth grade Rock-A-Chaws lost by the same score, 26-0.

"For our first eighth grade game, we played well," commented Rock Junior High coach Chuck Genin after the game. "We had some first-game jitters, but we made some mistakes we can overcome as a team," he added.

Genin also noted one particular strong point of his young team. "Our special teams played well, forcing three turnovers."

Key players for the eighth grade Rock offense were Peyton Schouest and Brook Quinlan. In the second half, Quinlan posted a run of over 30 yards.

Stone County got the momentum early in the game with a blocked punt against the junior Rocks. The Cats capitalized on the break and returned the ball for a TD.

Although the ninth grade Rock-A-Chaws lost their game 26-0, the final score did not indicate the quality of play. "They were bigger than we were," Genin said, "but our kids toughened up and took it to them. Our play improved during this game."

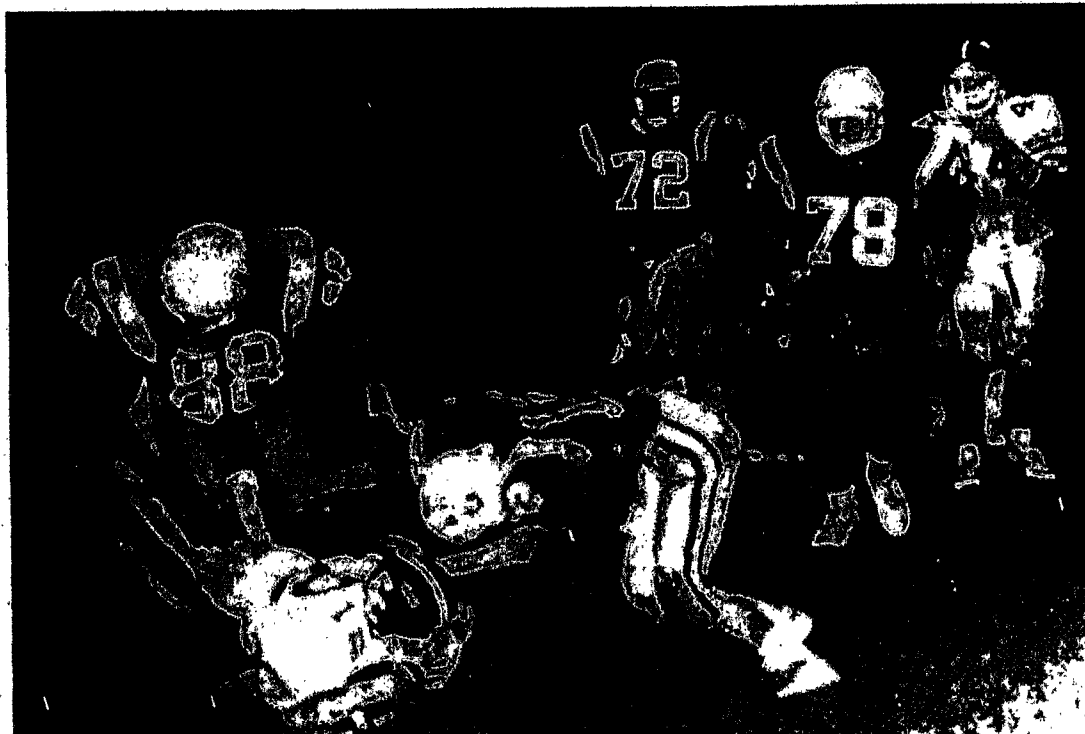

For the ninth grade Rocks it was their fourth loss against no wins for the season. "Our special teams broke down and gave up two blocked punts which were recovered for two of Stone's touchdowns," Genin said.

And continuing, he added, "A fumble deep in our territory resulted in another Stone TD."

Key players for the freshmen Rocks were Mike Hagensee and Kirk Edrington on defense. Andrew Gutierrez punted well and kept Stone deep in their own territory most of the night.

Next up for the eighth grade Rocks is the St. John Eagles. The game will be played October 5 at Rock-A-Chaw Stadium.

The Freshmen Rocks will face the George County Rebels also on October 5 at home.

Scientist

produced by each test will combine with the moisture in the air to produce a minimum of 400 tons of hydrochloric acid—acid which will fall as acid rain.

South Mississippi already has acid rain, Esher said, quoting data from an acid rain study he conducted for the U.S. Forest Service at Stennis.

Acid alone, however, is not the main cause of damage from acid rain. The greatest damage is caused by aluminum that is made available to plants and fish by the acid.

The amount of naturally occurring available aluminum in South Mississippi's soil is so great it is already toxic to certain plants, Esher said.

"We have a lot of erosion to our wetlands...what effect could it have on them?" Peterson asked.

"I don't know. There is so much we don't know and that is really bothersome. There are no studies on hydrochloric acid in the environment. Nobody studies it because it is not a common pollutant," Esher said.

Past studies have centered mainly around sulfuric acid, commonly caused by coal-fired industries and power plants, he said.

Board President Ronald Cuevas suggested that any problems the tests might cause would be considered in permitting procedures conducted by the State Bureau of Pollution Control and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The permitting processes are to set up to regulate industries that release pollutants over long periods of time, the doctor said.

Each test will dump its load of toxic materials into the atmosphere in approximately two minutes.

"These tests are more like catastrophic events. It is hard for an agency to regulate a catastrophe," Esher said.

"If people even think the area is polluted, how many new businesses do you think will locate here; how many people will want to spend their vacations here," he asked?

Esher said as a resident of Waveland and the father of two small children, his real concerns are for the health of the area's residents.

Citing scientific studies, he said the acid produced by the tests would aggravate respiratory problems, especially among children.

"NASA's own modeling indicates we will be impacted here in Bay St. Louis," he said.

"I will fight this thing (the ASRM tests) until my nose falls off if I have to," Coward said after the presentation.

"I want to look into it deeply before they (NASA) get my approval on the (ASRM). I am concerned," Peterson said.

"I'm just playing it by ear. I'm going in with an open mind. I'm trying to learn as much as I can," said District Four Supervisor Wilmer Seymour.

"If NASA thinks they can use a model to determine what the exhaust cloud from this test will do, why do they need to do the tests at all? Considering all the rockets they've fired in the past, they should be able to model the rocket's performance—but they can't," Esher said after his presentation.

when a 911 emergency call is received.

The read-out provides the telephone number from which the call originates, the location of that telephone and the name of the person occupying that location. If the location is a residence, the name of a second person in that household can be provided.

Dispatchers also have computerized equipment allowing them to switch the call to the appropriate emergency service if assistance other than a law enforcement authority is needed.

With the old 911 system, which did not cover the entire county as the new one does, the caller had to be able to give the dispatcher his location before help could be sent.

The public is invited to attend the dedication, Peterson said.

SENIOR CITIZENS HAPPENINGS

By Eve McDonald

NEW CLASSES

Lucille Luke has started a new class with RSVP volunteers making "Hug-a-Bears" for the telephone company. Volunteers to give to our local police department. The police will give them to children they come in contact with while on duty. The police in other areas have used this means of helping children who are frightened, sick or in any way in need.

Anyone interested in helping with this project, call Rosine Rushaway at our office at 467-9292. The classes are on Friday morning from 9 to 11.

Another class we have in conjunction with RSVP is a nursing home door-decoration class. That is a long name for a special lunch of seniors with JoAnn Lagasse as the teacher.

This class changed meeting days to Fridays at 1 p.m. They will meet twice a month in the conference room. This class is already, but if you are interested in getting on the waiting list, please call.

Some of our seniors were interested in a tattooing class, so are trying to get that started. Rose Ladner says she will teach and we have picked Wednesday from 12 to 2 p.m. as the time. Please call if interested.

WHEELS-ON-WHEELS

One of our most faithful drivers, Joy Burnett, is out for some weeks and we need a substitute! Help! Mr. Burnett will be sorely missed by all of us and the seniors he was kind enough to take meals to. This is a meaningful job and only takes about an hour or hour and a half to complete. If you care to do this one day a week it will help.

The only requirements are a good honest reputation, an interest in helping needy handicapped persons, reliability and a car. Call us at 467-9292 if you are interested.

VOTE
Senior Citizens have a good reputation for voting and that really helps when issues are addressed. The best way to see to it that your interests are protected is to keep the reputation by voting for the candidate of your choice and let them know you are watching their record.

Maybe they will do something about the catastrophic health care tax if we make enough noise.

Maybe they will do something about the minimum wage paid senior citizens who must work, and national health care for those who aren't on Medicare or Medicaid and have medical expenses they can't pay because of lack of funds - young and old alike are financially strapped paying for medical care.

Thousands comb beaches for trash in third annual cleanup

Tons of trash were collected from Mississippi shorelines Saturday as hundreds of people flocked to the Mississippi Gulf Coast to join the fight against marine trash.

"I think it's important that we do this every year," said Ellis Cuevas, cleanup coordinator in Hancock County.

Cuevas said that in Hancock County, 317 volunteers cleaned the amount of trash thrown onto Mississippi beaches and into Mississippi waters.

This marks the first year that volunteers managed to clean up all 65 miles of shoreline of Mis-

State Dick Molpus, one of this year's beach cleanup co-chairmen, walked the beach of Ship Island picking up trash along with other volunteers.

Molpus said he was surprised that most of the trash he collected in his 20-pound plastic garbage bag came from beachgoers rather than from ships. Molpus also said he was glad to see so many volunteers turn out for the cleanup.

"I think the message we are conveying here is that we care," Molpus told a group of volunteers at a brief ceremony kicking off the cleanup. "The people of Mississippi care about our beaches and we care about our environment."

Ninety-three-year-old Margaret Bryant of Ocean Springs

Hancock County, a beach cleanup volunteer, speaking of the large quantities of cigarette filters and plastic foam sandwich containers she collected. Lefant and her two children helped clean up the beach as a family project.

"Most of the debris we found is left on our beaches by visitors from Louisiana," said Paul Bode, Pass Christian cleanup coordinator. Fifty-five Pass Christian volunteers cleaned up eight miles of beach, collecting 98 bags of trash.

"By doing this (the cleanup), we send the message that we want our beaches kept clean," Bode said. "Maybe visitors will get that message and help us out. Besides, I think a clean beach tends to stay clean."

said that one of the biggest problems of marine trash is that birds and sea animals mistake trash for food and eat it. Statistics show that last year an estimated 2 million sea birds and 100,000 sea mammals died as a result of eating trash.

It is impossible to estimate the number of fish that die each year as a result of eating trash.

"We think back at how we started with a meager beginning three years ago," Snyder said during opening ceremonies. "We can see that we've accomplished a lot. It's good to see so many people show up today to give a little back to the resource that has given us so much."

As of 5 p.m. Saturday, about 19 tons of trash were reported collected from Mississippi beaches and more reports were expected to trickle in through the night.

Most of the trash was collected between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. with volunteers scheduled to clean more than 100 miles of shoreline.

The volunteers were participating in Mississippi's part of the third annual 'Take Pride Gulf Wide' beach cleanup. Take Pride Gulf Wide is an organized effort to clean up the American Gulf Coast from Florida to Texas for at least one day each year.

up 10 miles of shoreline and 5 miles of roads leading to beach, collecting five tons of trash.

"It's important that we educate people to pick up behind themselves," Cuevas said. "I know that it's hard to teach people that lesson, but there were a lot of young people out there to see that mess today. I think it makes a lasting impression on them and makes them better stewards when they become adults."

The cleanup was coordinated by the Mississippi Marine Trash Task Force, an informal organization of volunteers

Mississippi's six barrier islands - almost three times the amount of shoreline cleaned during last year's cleanup. The islands were able to be cleaned more thoroughly because of the task force's Adopt-a-Beach program.

Under the program, mile-long sections of shoreline are adopted and cleaned up by various groups. In adopting a section of shoreline, each group pledges to clean that section three times during the year - once during the Take Pride Gulf Wide cleanup, once during an organized spring cleanup and once at the group's discretion. also served as cleanup co-chairman and joined Molpus in cleaning up the Ship Island shoreline.

Called "Auntie Litter" by Gulf Coast residents, Bryant has been waging a war against beach litter almost all her life. On almost any day of the week, she can be seen picking up trash from the beach. Bryant's son, John, traveled to Biloxi from Illinois to help his mother in Saturday's beach cleanup.

"It's just disgraceful the amount of litter people throw on the beaches," Bryant said from underneath her calico sun bonnet. "Just to know it's out there makes you feel dirty, like you don't keep a clean house."

Garbage collected from beaches in the three-county area was put in plastic bags that were picked up by local waste-management companies and deposited in dumps.

Items of trash collected ranged from golf balls to toilet seats, but plastics, cigarette filters and plastic foam containers topped the lists of trash items bagged by volunteers.

"Smokers and fast food chains are our biggest enemies," said Phyllis Lefant of Chris Snyder, with the state Bureau of Marine Resources and cleanup publicity coordinator, said marine trash is an increasing international problem, adding that the world's oceans are literally drowning in a sea of trash.

Snyder, a marine biologist, money, equipment and manpower to the cleanup effort include: Browning Ferris Industries, Waste Management, Inc., Coca Cola, Chevron U.S.A., Keesler Air Force Base, the U.S. Coast Guard, Mobil Oil, Mississippi Power Co. and Hancock Bank.

Beach clean-up a success

A great big thanks to everyone who participated in the beach clean-up effort last Saturday. More than 300 youth and adults spent a brisk morning on eight miles of Hancock County beach and inland roadways. The response was overwhelming.

Ellis Cuevas and I have discussed the growing interest in a cleaner Hancock County. Over four years ago the Chamber of Commerce sponsored the first beach clean-up. On a rainy Saturday morning in February more than 400 people cleaned the beach at low tide. Each year there is less litter and debris to pick up.

The County Board of Supervisors is to be commended for their continued support. Three years ago a sand cleaning machine was purchased and a regular maintenance program instituted.

County crews have been faithful in their beach cleaning efforts, even though we've had some storms that dumped tons of sea grass and debris in our front yard.

The cleaner our environment, the less likely visitors and local residents will be to leave their trash on the roads and beaches. Keep up the good work!

HMC Auxiliary contributes chair to each private room

As the saying goes: "Volunteers are the heart of a community." At Hancock Medical Center, they are the heart of the hospital, too.

In September, the HMC Ladies Auxiliary purchased 11 new chair beds for the hospital's private rooms, completing a project begun last year which put a chair in each of the hospital's 30 private rooms.

"Throughout the years the Ladies Auxiliary has donated a number of items and numerous services to the people of Hancock County," said Theresa Bourgeois, auxiliary president.

"We have provided seasonal tray favors for patients to help brighten their day; redecorated the lobby; donated a 'Crash Kelly' CPR practice dummy, a FAX machine and benches for outside the hospital."

Mrs. Bourgeois said the group has a storehouse of plans for the 60-bed facility on Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis, including new hospital Christmas decorations, extra benches in the courtyard and more patient room decorations.

The auxiliary is now interviewing for more volunteer positions. Those interested in becoming members of the HMC Ladies Auxiliary may contact Mrs. Bourgeois at 467-7792.

THERESA BOURGEOIS AND PAT LANHAM

Blue Jeans Garden Club

Twenty-one members were in attendance for the September 21 meeting of the Blue Jeans Garden Club which was held at the Bay St. Louis home of Cathleen Taconi.

Co-hostesses with Cathleen were Gladys Goodloe, Irene Graff, and Dorothy Neubig.

The meeting was opened with a prayer, lead by the hostess, for the victims of Hurricane Hugo. A lovely inspirational poem "The Way Before Me" by Fanny Crosby was read by Virginia Thomas.

President Dorothy Feaheny, conducting the business meeting, warmly welcomed everyone to another busy year for the group of active ladies.

Among the many business matters discussed were the group's continued support of the Hancock County Food Pantry and the battered women's program, a proposed garden tour and several other interesting possibilities.

An extra idea introduced last spring for the first time by the Blue Jeans was the 'September Plant Swap.' Each member interested in participating was asked to "pot" a small cutting or plant from her garden and care for it during the summer months. The results were unbelievable - a learning experience.

Program chairman Dorothy Neubig presented each member an assortment of interesting and informative literature on the selection, planting and care of a variety of plants, flowers and trees for fall planting.

President Feaheny noted it was time also to start working on Christmas and Thanksgiving ideas for the November competition among members.

Receiving points for their winning entries in various categories of the September competition among the members were: Phil Lagasse - horticulture; Alice Brechtel - miniature; Beverly Coogan - potted; Beulah Peterson - wild; and Virginia Thomas - dried. Winner of the September half and half was Dorothy Neubig. The door prize, a set of garden tools, was won by Lucille Witter.

The October meeting and social will be held at the home of Jennie Ortis, Waveland.

Diamondhead Art Association

Jimilu Mason, internationally known sculptor-artist, will be the guest lecturer at the Monday, October 2 meeting of the Diamondhead Art Association. The meeting is held at 1 p.m. in the main room of the Community Center. Guests are invited to attend this meeting.

Mason will lecture and show her 12-minute, two projector slide and sound documentation on the creation of the Bronze Group of "The Leaping Dancers," installed in Charleston, West Virginia. Her thoughts on women in the arts, and her unique style in managing her own career will be the topic of her lecture.

The program will start promptly at 1 p.m. and guests and members are urged to be on time. Refreshments will be served after the presentation.

For additional information call Charlotte Reshaw, program chairman, 255-1747.

Pass Christian Senior Citizens

Pass Christian Senior Citizens held their monthly birthday covered-dish on Wednesday, Sept. 27 at the center on West Second Street. There were 30 members and guests present.

Grace was said by Mary Davids followed by a delicious meal, many desserts and tea. Mrs. Vernia Mae Ladner and Mrs. Mary Davids were the two members celebrating September birthdays.

Mrs. Mae Parker, director of the center, invites all senior citizens (55 and older) to come and enjoy their favorite crafts or just visit.

On Monday, October 2 the gift shop will remain open until 5 P.M. - also the first Monday in November and December it will stay open until 5 P.M.

There is a large selection of handmade items and many Christmas gifts (lativity Musical sets, Santa Claus, trees, etc.) available for purchase at a reasonable price.

The next dinner will be on Wednesday, Oct. 25 at noon. Bingo is played from 10:30 to noon.

Guests in attendance were Alderman-At-Large Gene Rogers and Steely Beard.

Study shows common plants help reduce indoor air pollution

Common indoor plants may prove to be a valuable weapon in the fight against rising levels of indoor air pollution, based on research conducted by NASA and carried out for many years by Dr. Bill Wolverton, a senior research scientist at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

Landscape Contractors of America (ALCA) announced the findings of a two-year study that suggests the common indoor plant may provide a natural way of combating "sick building" syndrome — an acute incidence of indoor air pollution that can occur in closed or poorly ventilated offices and residences.

For a number of years, Wolverton has conducted research at Stennis Space Center into the use of biological processes as a means of solving environmental problems both on Earth and in space habitats. Based on preliminary evaluations of the use of common indoor plants for indoor air purification and revitalization, ALCA joined NASA to fund a study of about a dozen popular varieties of ornamental plants to determine their effectiveness in removing several key pollutants associated with indoor air pollution.

While more research is needed, Wolverton says the study has shown that common landscaping plants can remove certain pollutants from the indoor environment.

"We feel that future research will provide an even stronger argument that common landscaping plants can be a very effective part of a system used to provide pollution-free homes and work places," Wolverton said.

Each plant type was placed in sealed, plexiglass chambers in which chemicals were injected. Philodendron, spider plant and the golden pothos were labeled as the most effective in removing formaldehyde. Flowering plants such as the gerbera daisy and chrysanthemums were rated superior in removing benzene from the chamber atmosphere.

Other plants demonstrated to be effective air purifiers include the bamboo palm, peace lily, ficus, mass cane, mother-in-law's tongue, English ivy and Chinese evergreen.

"Plants take substances out of the air through the tiny openings in their leaves," Wolverton said. "But research in our laboratories has determined that plant leaves, roots and soil bacteria are all important in removing trace levels of toxic vapors."

"Combining nature with technology can increase the effectiveness of plants in removing air pollutants," he said. A living air cleaner is created by combining activated carbon and a fan with a potted plant. "The roots of the plant grow right into the carbon and slowly degrade the chemicals absorbed there," Wolverton said.
